Script Follows:

6:45 p.m.: Fernando quiets the crowd and when they are quiet, begins the script as follows:

Fernando: Good evening ladies and gentlemen. Welcome to the Admiral Carey Foundation Annual Commitment to Leadership Awards. I'm Fernando Cortes, past Executive Director of the Washington Scholars Fellowship Programs and the Chief of Staff of the Admiral Carey Foundation. Let me now introduce our Founder and Chairman, Rear Admiral Jim Carey, who founded both the Admiral Carey Foundation and the Washington Scholars Fellowship Programs. Admiral Carey!!

Admiral Carey: Thanks Fernando, and welcome to all of you as we honor these six distinguished Commitment to Leadership Award Recipients tonight. As I'm sure everyone here realizes, the broad spectrum of programs and projects that this foundation undertakes every year cannot and are not accomplished by just me, or by me and the foundation's officers and our Board of Trustees and Board of Advisors. It takes a large number of dedicated friends and colleagues and supporters and volunteers to make it all work, and that is what led to our establishing the Admiral Carey Foundation Annual "Commitment To Leadership" Awards Program. That's what this foundation is all about---- a commitment to leadership to ensure the next and future generations are trained and developed and equipped to lead our two nations, the USA and Canada, into the rest of the 21st Century and beyond. And as you will learn tonight, we are well on our way in these efforts, and we have already accomplished much by way of next-generation leadership training and development for the future. Tonight we honor six distinguished gentlemen, all of whom have had significant involvement in what our foundation has accomplished, and all of whom have done much in their own right to ensure that the next and future generations of our national and international leadership are identified, trained, and assisted in pursuing lifetime career paths in the national and international public policies that are used to govern our nations and which impact upon each of us and our lives in more ways than we sometimes wish. So welcome to these ceremonies and thank you for your support of the Admiral Carey Foundation and all we do. Let us now recognize, with you as our witnesses, six outstanding leaders who are giving back to society by working with us to train the national leaders of the future.

Fernando----- "On With The Show".

Fernando: Thanks Admiral. We will now begin our ceremonies. Let me start out by explaining why we do this. As the Admiral explained, our foundation's primary focus is on youth leadership training and leadership development and the primary program we support is the Washington Scholars Fellowship Program. We have interns and fellows that we place throughout Washington, DC as Congressional Staff, at federal agencies, at leading Think Tanks, and at a broad spectrum of national and international public policy organizations. We seek to interest some of the best and brightest young men and women in lifetime career paths where they can use their minds and their energies to better our nation and help solve some of our nation's problems. These are 10 week programs that train some 40+ college and grad school age men and women every year in how government runs or doesn't run, how to fix it, and to prove to them that while they are still in their 20's, they can have an impact on national and international public policy that can help fix our country. To date, we have had over 500 graduates of these programs and now have over 100 of our graduates working full time here in the nation's capitol city in careers where they can have maximum impact on the policies that drive our nation. None of this happens without lots of help and support, and many of you who are our key supporters are here in our audience tonight. Admiral Carey thought it was about time that we gave recognition to some of our strongest supporters for all they have done in their lives and careers to train and develop future leaders, and tonight we begin that process.

Our first Commitment to Leadership award recipient----these will be done in alphabetical order given the distinguished credentials of all our award recipients---- is Dr. George Jackowski of Toronto, Canada. Mr. Nguyen, would you escort Dr. Jackowski to center stage.

Pause until Dr. J. is on stage, then read the following:

Dr. Jackowski is Chairman of the Pivotal Therapeutics Corporation in Canada and the USA. He has a lifetime of achievements and accomplishments in science and biomedicine and holds no less than 141 patents for biomedical procedures, medicines, and devices. He has been a strong proponent throughout his life in training the next generation of leaders in biomedicine and has worked closely with the Admiral Carey Foundation and the Washington Scholars Fellowship Programs, first by supporting Canadian participants in the Washington Scholars and now in full support of a parallel program in Canada known as the Distinguished Scholars of Canada.

Mr. Brooks, please read the citation for Dr. Jackowski as Admiral Carey presents the award medallion and framed citation.

Will Brooks: Reads the citation from the citation document, during which Admiral Carey presents the medallion and framed document. Upon completion of the reading of the citation, Fernando says "Ladies & Gentlemen, a warm "across the border" round of applause for Dr. George Jackowski". As applause dies down, Admiral Carey escorts Dr. Jackowski to the rear of the stage while Fernando begins the next narrative:

Fernando: Mr. Nguyen, please escort Lieutenant General Klimp to center stage. [Once he's at center stage, begin the following narrative]:

Lieutenant General Jack Klimp is a retired three star general of the United States Marine Corps, now serving as the National President of the National Association for Uniformed Services. He has been a strong supporter of the Admiral Carey Foundation and the Washington Scholars Fellowship Programs and has attended several Washington Scholars graduation ceremonies. He has continued to work with the Admiral Carey Foundation on our youth leadership training and development programs and has held discussions with Admiral Carey to begin hosting a Washington Scholar Fellow for training at the National Association for Uniformed Services. He has truly served a lifetime dedicated to leadership training in both the military and military-related organizations, including the United States Naval Academy.

Commander Brooks, please read the citation.

Will Brooks: Reads the citation document while Admiral Carey presents the awards. After the citation is read, Fernando says "Ladies & Gentlemen, please give a warm round of applause for Lieutenant General Jack Klimp". As applause dies down, JJC escorts General Klimp to the rear of the stage and Fernando continues:

Fernando: Mr. Nguyen, please escort The Honorable Wilson Livingood to center stage. [Once he's there, read the following narrative]:

The Honorable Wilson Livingood has worked closely with the Admiral Carey Foundation during his 17 years of service as the Sergeant at Arms of the U.S. House of Representatives. During his tenure there in our nation's capitol, Bill Livingood hosted several Washington Scholars whose interests lay in law enforcement and criminal justice to participate in a youth leadership program he had started with the Capitol Hill Police. Proof positive of the tremendous effect this program had on these Washington Scholar graduates is that several of them were hired full time on the Sergeant at Arms staff due to their outstanding performance there, while others have gone on to significant law enforcement and criminal justice careers with the Capitol Hill Police, NCIS, the security detail for the Secretary of Transportation, and the Pentagon Police Force. And these accomplishments are just a part of the legacy of Wilson Livingood, as you are about to hear. Commander Brooks, please read the citation:

Will Brooks: Reads the citation from the citation document while Admiral Carey presents the medallion and framed citation. When the citation has been read, Fernando then says "Ladies & Gentlemen, please give a warm round of applause for the Honorable Wilson Livingood". As applause dies down and the Admiral escorts Mr. Livingood to rear stage, Fernando begins the next presentation:

Fernando: Mr. Nguyen, please escort The Honorable Edwin Meese the Third to center stage. Once he's there, proceed with the following narrative:

Former Attorney General Ed Meese is known to many MANY Washington Scholars Graduates here tonight, since he has had a Washington Scholar Fellow on his staff at the Heritage Foundation continuously since 1999. Ed Meese has been a long-time friend of our Founder, Admiral Carey, since they both served in the Reagan Administration together, Mr. Meese at the White House and then as Attorney General of the United States, and Admiral Carey as Chairman of the US Federal Maritime Commission. And they both well remember when they conducted ceremonies very similar to what we are doing today when they held the Reagan Administration Reagan Revolution Medal of Honor Ceremonies during the Reagan Presidency. But that was then, and this is now, and today we honor Former Attorney General Meese for his lifetime of service to America and his lifetime of commitment to the leadership training and development of three generations of young Americans.

Commander Brooks, please read the citation for General Meese.

Will Brooks: Reads the Ed Meese citation while Admiral Carey presents the medallion and framed citation. Once Will has finished reading the citation, Fernando says "Ladies & Gentlemen, please join me in a warm round of applause for Attorney General Meese". As the applause dies down and JJC escorts Mr. Meese to rear stage, Fernando begins the next aware:

Fernando: Mr. Nguyen, please escort The Honorable Ed Pease to center stage. [Once he is at center stage, read the following narrative]

Congressman Pease has an incredible lifetime record of support and commitment to leadership training and development in a broad range of youth groups that range from university staffs to fraternity leaders to the boy scouts of america to Congressional staff during a career spanning thirty plus years. He has been active with these groups at the local, regional, national and international levels and throughout all of this, has been a good friend and supporter of the Admiral Carey Foundation and the Washington Scholars Fellowship Programs. And he continues this work to this very day, mentoring young men and women who are former members of his Congressional Staff and continuing to serve on the Board of the Philmont Scout Ranch where he also maintains a summer home. Congressman Pease is being honored today for his lifetime of service and his tremendous proven record of youth leadership training for over thirty years.

Commander Brooks, would you read the citation for Congressman Pease.

Will Brooks: Will reads the citation from the Ed Pease citation document while Admiral Carey presents the medallion and framed citation. When the citation has been read, Fernando says "Ladies & Gentlemen, please join me in a warm round of applause for Congressman Ed Pease". When the applause begins to die down, JJC escorts Mr. Pease to stage rear and Fernando continues with the last award:

Fernando: Mr. Nguyen, please escort Lieutenant Colonel Walter Perchal of Canada to center stage. [Once he's there, Fernando continues]:

Lieutenant Colonel Walter Perchal of Canada has been a good friend and colleague of the Admiral Carey Foundation and the Washington Scholars Programs for the last decade. In his role as a Professor at York University in Toronto, where he teaches homeland security and contingency planning for cities and corporations, Professor Perchal has regularly identified some of his best and brightest graduate students who have the potential to be national or international leaders, and he has mentored them and sponsored them into the Washington Scholars Program here in the USA. He has been instrumental in our work with the Canadian Embassy here in Washington, and he has used the experience gained through the Washington Scholars to found the Distinguished Scholars of Canada, now in operation both here in the USA and in Ottawa, Canada, working directly with several Ministers of the federal government there in Canada's capitol city. Lieutenant Colonel Perchal now serves as the Chairman of the Distinguished Scholars of Canada Program.

Comander Brooks, please read the citation for Professor Perchal.

Will Brooks: Reads the citation document while JJC presents the award medallion and framed citation, and at the end of the reading of the citation, Fernando says "Ladies & Gentlemen, please join me in a warm round of "hands across the border" applause for Lieutenant Colonel Perchal".

Things now change, so be alert!!!!!!

As the applause dies down, Fernando now says "Will all the award recipients now join Admiral Carey at Center Stage for group photographs. For those of you in the audience with camera's, now's your only chance to get this group photo."

Once Admiral Carey gives the high sign to Fernando, Fernando reads:

"Ladies & Gentlemen, this completes the 2012 Admiral Carey Foundation Commitment to Leadership Awards. Please now feel free to approach the stage and shake the hands of all our award recipients. Thanks for being here, and we'll see you again at these ceremonies next year. This concludes today's ceremonies."

The End
